John

The author of the Gospel of John and the Book of Revelation, John was the only apostle not to have a martyr's death. In Revelation he writes from the island of Patmos, Greece, "I John, your brother, who share with you in Jesus the tribulation and the kingdom and the patient endurance, was on the island called Patmos on account of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus" (Revelation 1:9). He died around 100 AD and is buried near Ephesus.

Philip

In the years following Pentecost, Philip ministered to Greek-speaking communities. Little is known about his adventures, except that he was martyred around 80 AD. His relics are located in the Basilica Santi Apostoli, in Rome.

Judas Thaddeus

The "forgotten" apostle due to his name being the same as Judas Iscariot, St. Jude preached the gospel in various places. He is revered by the Armenian Church as the "Apostle to the Armenians." He suffered martyrdom around 65 AD in Beirut, Lebanon. His remains are currently in Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Simon the Zealot

Simon is often depicted with Judas Thaddeus and some believe they preached together as a team. This is due in part because a tradition states they were both martyred in Beirut in the same year. Some of his relics are believed to be located in Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Matthias

After being chosen as the "replacement apostle," one tradition states that Matthias founded a church in Cappadocia and ministered to Christians on the coasts of the Caspian Sea. It is believed that he died a martyr's death, and was beheaded with an axe in Colchis at the hands of the many pagans there. Some of his relics are said to have been brought to Rome by St. Helena.

James the Less

Scholars believe that Saint James the Less authored the "Epistle of St. James" found in the New Testament. After the apostles dispersed and left Jerusalem, James remained and became the first bishop in the holy city. He remained there for several decades until he was stoned to death by the Jewish authorities in the year 62. Some of his relics can be found in the Basilica Santi Apostoli, in Rome. It is also believed his tomb is located at the St. James Cathedral in Jerusalem. in Beirut in the same year. Some of his relics are believed to be located in Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome.
