Not one of us is a “worthless slave” in the eyes of our Creator, who made us and called us “very good.” God did not make us to set us against each other or order us by worth. God did not make us to throw us away. God loves us all and we should treat each other like siblings.

Special Second Collection Next Weekend

The Campaign for Human Development aims to change the root causes that allow over 43 million people in the United States to live in poverty. This second collection on November 17th will empower people to identify and overcome obstacles as they work to bring permanent and positive change to their communities. Twenty five percent of funds collected will remain in our diocese for local anti-poverty funding projects. Learn more at www.usccb.org/cchd/collection.

The Incarnation is for Us

Lutheran Bishop Stephen Bouman tells of standing behind an altar in a small crypt chapel of the Church of the Annunciation in Nazareth in the Holy Land, the place where Mary heard that she was going to have a baby. He saw some Latin words carved into the altar, Verbum caro factum est, "The Word was made flesh." But then he noticed that there was one other little word in Latin. That word: h-i-c. Hic. "Here." Verbum caro hic factum est. "The Word was made flesh here." Probably whoever authorized that inscription meant it to refer to that specific location, but in reality the Incarnation means God became flesh here on earth, for all of us. The Incarnation means that we can speak of the "hicness" of God, the nearness of God. Incarnation means that God walks with us on earth, and that if we are saved anywhere, it is right here on earth.
